Plan a 5-day trip to Japan for under $1,000

Hi! I'm your AI Travel Planner. Where would you like to explore in Japan? I can help with destinations, itineraries, bookings, and real-time travel updates!

To plan a 5-day trip to Japan for under $1,000, we'll need to consider budget-friendly options while ensuring you experience the best of what Japan has to offer. Here's a rough outline:

Day 1: Arrival in Tokyo

• Flight: Look for economy fares on budget airlines or use flight comparison tools like Skyscanner or Google Flights for the best deals. Remember that prices fluctuate rapidly; hence checking these platforms directly is recommended. (I can't check live prices now.)

• Accommodation: Consider staying in an Airbnb or hostel in areas like Shinjuku or Asakusa for affordability without compromising convenience.

Day 2 & 3: Explore Tokyo

Activities could include visiting free attractions such as Meiji Shrine and Yoyogi Park, exploring Harajuku's quirky fashion scene, strolling through Ueno Park and its museums (some have entry fees but there are also free exhibitions). For food, street markets like Ameya Yokocho offer local delicacies at reasonable prices. Use public transportation which is efficient and relatively cheap ($4-$6 per single fare).
